

BROWN AS BERRIES

And Lively as Crickets the Linsly Institute Cadets

RETURN FROM THEIR OUTING

Of the Past Week out the Creek—All are Enthusiastic Over Their Experiences and the Camp Will Probably be a Permanent Feature—The Cadets Addressed by Rev. Jacob Brittingham Yesterday.

Brown as berries and lively as crickets the Linsly Institute Cadet corps, some eighty strong, returned last night from their week's encampment out Big Wheeling creek beyond Elm Grove, and ready for the fall opening at the institute this morning. All the boys are enthusiastic over the military camp idea as preliminary to the school's opening, and it will likely be made a permanent feature. All the boys enjoyed the best of health, though the weather was rather chilly the latter half of the week.

Yesterday afternoon the camp was visited by about 200 friends and parents of the cadets. In fact, it was "visitors' day," and the boys had made special preparations for their friends and relatives. In the afternoon, at 3:30 o'clock, the assembly was addressed by Rev. Jacob Brittingham, rector of St. Luke's P. E. church, whose topic was "Christian Fortitude." He said in part:

The writings of St. Paul abound in striking imagery, and certainly few men could use it to better advantage. He was especially happy in adapting himself to the people to whom he spoke or wrote.

If he wrote or spoke to the Hebrews, he drew his imagery from the temple, the sacrifices and the priesthood. When he wrote to a Greek population, he took for his illustrations the Isthmian games, boxing, wrestling, or running. When he wrote to the Romans, or to those who were familiar with the Roman soldier, he taught many lessons from camp life, with which he was in constant contact. When he wrote the text he was a prisoner in Rome, and had soldiers about him all the time. He had seen them on parade and on the march; he had watched them clean their weapons, putting on and taking off their armor; he had heard them tell stories of hardship in camp and on the battlefield; he had noticed their discipline and obedience to authority; and as he saw all this he was impressed with the supreme importance of Christian fortitude, bravery, fearlessness. He saw it exemplified in the Roman soldier, and he knew the Christian soldier must have it, too. If he would win in the battle of life and endure hardships.

He wrote to his son of the gospel Timothy, and told him about this great virtue of a good soldier of Jesus Christ, and I do wish that I could impress you boys with the importance of it, too, and with the necessity of being under its control at all times; for if you are truly brave you will realize that you have, first of all, enemies to fight, and they are many and terrible. Sin, self and Satan are a trinity of evils which some one has called the internal foe. These are not imaginary foes, but very real, and the boy who does not wake up to the reality of their existence will surely suffer defeat in the end. If you don't conquer them, they will conquer you. When Haman was very young his father took him to the altar of the gods of his native city and there made him swear lifelong enmity to Rome. And so should we from today be sworn enemies to all that is evil, and bold warriors for all that is good.

Another thing the truly brave always does. He never underestimates the power of the foe. When Wellington was asked why he was never defeated, he replied: "I never despise my enemy." Many are defeated in the Christian warfare because they underestimate their power to resist them. Dinah thought this way when she went out among the daughters of the land and returned with disheveled hair. Peter thought so when he went among the enemies of his Master, but the temptation was too strong, and he fell. And so will it be with you if you go into temptation. Don't daily with temptation or think lightly of sin.

Another thing about Christian fortitude is that it is always in earnest. During the Crimean war a young chaplain asked a Christian sergeant what he thought the best thing to do to carry on his work. The sergeant pointed to the men in the trenches and said: "See those men; hear the roar of the cannon; all are in earnest there; it's a matter of life and death. If you would do good you must be in earnest." This is true in the fight with sin; we must be in earnest and endure as good soldiers if we would win.

Then remember that Christian fortitude has the spirit of persistent effort in one direction, which brings after a time surprising added power for further action in the same direction, and is a sign of character. Grant, Jackson, Vanderbilt and others can be cited as examples.

O, watch and fight and pray. The battle never give o'er. Renew it boldly every day. And help Divine implore.

Never think the victory won. Nor lay thine armor down. Thy arduous work will not be done Till thou obtain the crown.

A DASTARDLY DEED.

A Stone Hurler Through a Car Window Near Point Mills.

An officer in the employ of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was at Point Mills, about eight miles east of Wheeling, yesterday, investigating a dastardly affair that occurred Saturday night, while the "cannon ball" was passing through the village. A stone was hurled through the window of the train, smashing the glass to smithereens, and giving the passengers quite a start. The amusing feature was that the passenger by the shattered window had previously imbibed freely of fire water and was curled up asleep, and knew nothing until a loud rattle of the conductor. The window was in the smoker. It is thought the stone was hurled through a mistaken idea of mischief. The penalty for the offense in this state includes a five-year term in the penitentiary.

A Big Enterprise.

On Saturday, at Charleston, the papers of incorporation of a company in which Wheeling people will be particularly interested was issued by the secretary of state. It is the Wheeling Consolidated Coal Company, with Messrs. John M. Birch, William H. Hearne and Jere A. Miller as the principal incorporators. The capital stock subscribed is $1,000, with authority to increase to $5,000,000. This company is acquiring considerable coal land in the vicinity of Wheeling, and mines on an extensive scale will be established in the near future. Eastern capital is said to be interested.

DEATH PENALTY.

Rev. C. M. Oliphant's Sermon on "Capital Punishment"

SCRIPTURES AND SOCIETY

Call for the Enforcement of This Measure—The Objections to it Noted and Answered—The Penalty Places the Highest Value on Human Life, Justice, not Revenge, Compels its Use for Self-preservation.

The oft-debated question of capital punishment was discussed at the First Christian church by the pastor, Rev. C. M. Oliphant, last night, he favoring this penalty for murder. His text was from Genesis, 9-8, "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." Murder of the first degree, the wilful, malicious kind, was the crime meriting the punishment.

It was a universal principle that virtue shall be rewarded and crime punished, said Rev. Mr. Oliphant. There were three objects in enforcing punishment. First, to uphold the majesty of the law; second, to prevent crime; third, to reform the criminal where reformation was possible. Quoting from Herbert Spencer, he spoke along the lines of self-preservation, and that when a man disturbed the harmony of a community he should be removed from the community, consequently capital punishment had its place in the jurisprudence of all nations. It had the effect of warning others against the disgrace of such a death. Murder is the highest possible crime and its horrors were manifold, and the murderer forfeits his claim to life, continued the speaker.

Objections to capital punishment were answered. The first objection to it is that it is revengeful. The speaker said there was nothing in this argument, since justice was not revengeful and mercy couldn't govern too much. It was justice done as self preservation; revenge was malicious, not justice.

Another objection is that when society takes a life by this method it is guilty of murder. But the officer of the law doesn't take the criminal's life, in the sense of murder.

Human life is so precious that capital punishment should not be legalized, is a favorite objection. In return, the speaker pictured the murderer, stealthily creeping to the bedside of his intended victim, and he asked if the sleeper awoke and shot the intruder, would he be termed a murderer. Certainly not, he killed his assailant in self-defense. The same theory applied to the law, which executed murderers to protect society. The cases were exceptional where murderers afterward became good citizens.

Sympathy was not the guide; it was justice. While there could be sympathy for the murderer, could there not also be sympathy for the murdered and his kin? That murder was a cranial development—the insanity plea—Mr. Oliphant vigorously disputed.

In consideration, he said, that the death penalty places the highest value on human life, and the scriptures teach it.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mr. Arthur Pryor, the famous trombone virtuoso, who has always been identified with the Sousa concerts, has achieved wonders at a youthful age and stands at the very head of players of the trombone of any country. There are but few artists, vocal or instrumental, who enjoy such emphatic favoritism throughout the country. His appearances are always looked for and even demanded by the public whenever Sousa's band is announced. Mr. Herbert L. Clark, the coronet virtuoso of international reputation, is a late acquisition to Sousa's band, or, to be more exact, resumes the position formerly held by him, that of coronet soloist. He is noted as one of the most skilled and artistic performers in America. Emil Kenecke is another great cornetist. There are other soloists of note, also, Frank Hell, flugelhorn, Simone Mantia, euphonium; Frank Wadsworth, flute; G. Norrito, piccolo; J. Norrito, clarinet, and others of equal reputation. Sousa and his great organization will be here in full force in two concerts on Sunday, September 24, at Wheeling Park Casino.

"Battles of Our Nation"

Nearly all the railroads entering Wheeling will give excursion rates to Wheeling, good for two days, next Saturday and Sunday, for the many out-of-town people desirous of attending Contorno's "Battles of Our Nation," at Mozart park on these dates. The railroads give this concession on the view of the general demand to take advantage of this superb combination of all that money and talent could secure. Arrangements are progressing rapidly at Mozart park, and the management is preparing to receive thousands of people. The special stage, having a space of 2,400 square feet, will be completed in a few days, and will afford ample room for the extensive scenery employed in depicting the various battles from the Revolution to the present war in the Philippines. The enclosure now being built will seat 5,000 people. There will be matinee and evening performance both days, a children's matinee Saturday afternoon, and the children have a great treat in store in Harry Deave's Royal Automaton, which never fail to amuse the little ones to a keen degree. The Marionette band, one of the sometimes killed, and but one of the score of special features. The "Battles of Our Nation" is equally interesting and instructive to the younger generation, portraying with music, canvas and actors all the wars America has passed through.

"The Three Musketeers."

The present craze for the romantic drama is a healthy one. One may smile at the grand airs, fierce stride, impetuosity and reckless ardor, either in a love affair or a duel of these picturesque heroes of the stage, but the smile is one of honest amusement, and all will welcome this return to the plays that reward virtue, applaud manly valor and do not vex the brain, with social questions that should not be discussed in public. "The Three Musketeers" is easily the most invigorating of these plays. Dumas' immortal story has taken on a new lease of stage life in the version that Harry Glazier, a young romantic actor of marked ability, will present at the Opera House, Thursday evening, September 21, will compare favorably with any of those seen before. Mr. Glazier's tour is under the management of E. D. Stair and no expense has been spared to make the production exceptionally elaborate and attractive. Mr. Glazier's D'Artagnan is manly and dashing and possesses a rare charm and intelligence. The supporting company includes Warren P. Hill, as Louis XIII; John P. Barrett, Richelieu; Alexander Randolph, Duke of Buckingham; Lawrence Underwood, Athos; Thomas B. Findlay, Portos; L. G. Ingraham, Aramis; George C. Denton, DeTreville; Miladi (Lady de Winter) Vail de Vernon; Anne of Austria, Blanche Stoddard, and Constance, Madge Tucker.

"A Bell Boy"

A play built for laughing purposes only is the new musical farce comedy, "A Bell Boy," which is to be presented at the Grand Opera House, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. The cast is made up of many well known people who have been identified with this class of entertainment. The play is richly mounted, all scenery and accessories being carried with the company. The electrical effects are said to be very beautiful and the musical numbers and ensemble work much above the ordinary. The management have taken great care to avoid anything that would give the least offense even to the most fastidious, and the result is a clean, high-class and thoroughly meritorious performance.

WAIL FROM MEXICO.

Clerical Organ Becomes an Alarmist. The Writting Astec Eagle and the Americanized Mexicans.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 17.—The new clerical organ, La Luz, of Chihuahua, raises the usual cry of the conservative party, predicting the absorption of the country by the United States and the danger to Mexico of so many Mexicans who have become Americanized in all their ideas, and which are the worst foes the fatherland has.

Bursting into eloquence, La Luz says: "The Aztec eagle writhes wounded at the foot of the symbolic cactus; in vain does it endeavor with the fluttering of its wings to frighten away the plague of disgusting insects which surround it. In the white house is heard the prophetic croaking of the vulture, with its ensanguined eyes fastened on its victims. It only awaits the stinging of the insects to fall upon its prey and wound it. The insects are the Yaquis, Protestants, Yankeeized Mexicans and Chinese."

And it appears that the most of all La Luz fears the Yankeeized Mexicans. It continues: "With bitterness in their hearts and insults written on their foreheads they are ready to strike at the heart of La Patria."

Gravely Tortured.

MATZATLAN, Mex., Sept. 17.—Private advices from Sonora show that Chief Totablate, of the Yaquis, who remained loyal to the Mexican government, was seized by the rebels and cruelly tortured, being stripped, slashed with knives and his body shockingly mutilated, while the Yaquis danced about, taunting him, and crying out: "Take your peace. Now you are punished for siding with the Mexican government."

Green Firemen.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The Cunard line steamer Lucania arrived at her pier to-day, 24 hours behind time. The primary cause of the Lucania's delay was the strike at Liverpool, which compelled the company to man the great steamer with boys and inexperienced men as firemen, who were unable to keep up the steam to the standard required. The Lucania brought 377 saloon, 353 second cabin and 666 third-class passengers, a total of 1,396, the greatest number ever brought by the Lucania.

New Base Ball League.

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—A new base ball league, whose circuit will include cities in both the national and western leagues and which will be known as the American Association of base ball clubs, was formed here to-day at a meeting of base ball men, and lovers of the national game. The circuit as decided on to-day will include the following cities: St. Louis, Milwaukee, Detroit and Chicago in the west, and Baltimore, New York, Philadelphia and Washington in the east.

DIAMOND JUBILEE

Anniversary of American Odd Fellowship—Large Gathering at Detroit of Members of the Order.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 17.—The officials and the rank and file of the American Odd Fellowship, who have thus far arrived in the city, passed a quiet Sunday, preliminary to the opening of the diamond jubilee anniversary of the order. There are already on hand some 400 of the higher officials, including all the officers of the sovereign grand lodge, delegates to the grand lodge sessions, state grand lodge officers, grand encampment officers, and officers of the Rebekah branch; besides these about 1,000 of the rank and file have thus far arrived from various states.

Religious services were held to-day in the First Congregational church. The central portion of the church auditorium was reserved for the Odd Fellows and their ladies, several hundred of whom arrived from headquarters by special trolley train. Rev. Nehemiah Boynton, D. D., pastor of the church, preached upon "Brotherhood."

Work progressed all day on the great welcoming arch which will span Woodward avenue. The hotels have been crowded since early morning with incoming Odd Fellows. To-morrow the sovereign grand lodge will be formally welcomed in the Detroit opera house by Governor Pingree and Mayor McGarry. Tuesday's feature will be the annual reunion of the past grand representatives and members of the sovereign grand lodge. Wednesday, the grand parade will be held. Thursday will be given over to the prize drills, with a Rebekah concert in the evening. Friday and Saturday will be spent in sightseeing and other pleasures.
